

Reconstructed Jean Skirt

Perfect for a pair of old jeans, but also works great on any other type of pants as well!

You will need a pair of pants, a seam ripper, pins, scissors, a sewing machine thread, and any patches, ribbon or trim you may want to add!

Step 1. Using your scissors, cut the legs off of your jeans, keeping in mind how long you'd like your skirt and if you need allowance for a optional hem.

Step 2. Using your seam ripper tool, rip the inside leg seams all the way up to the crotch. Then, rip the front and back seams up to the bottom of the zipper flap.

Step 3. Pin the front and back flaps together overlapping the legs on top of each other. Make sure that the material lays flat and does not pucker at all!

Step 4. Using your sewing machine, stitch the front and back of the skirt in place with two lines of stitching close to each other, replicating the original stitching of the inside seams.

Step 5. Turn your skirt inside out and hem if desired. A rolled hem is easiest!

Step 6. Add ribbon trim, an appliqué or patches to make it your own!
